IS ALEXANDRIA FORGING AHEAD?

Twelve years ago we came to this old town and engaged in the dry goods business. At that time we found cobble stone streets galore, and not a modern bank on King street, the principal thoroughfare.

To-day you will find a modern dry goods house at the corner of Pitt and King streets, owned and managed by the above firm.

To-day you will find five modern banking houses on King street.

To-day you will find King street paved with vitrified brick from the wharf to the union station. Besides, many other cobble stone streets have given away to the modern thoroughfare.

To-day you will find a wide-awake chamber of commerce, and a Retail Merchants' Association, both doing good work.

To-day you will find many new manufacturing industries.
We think Alexandria is forging ahead.
